ON Training 2022 Wrap up - Read More...

We recognise that a company's employees are its most valuable asset. Our range of training courses, delivered both face to face and online, are based on the needs of our member companies and their employees. This year we have trained 371 delegates across three continents from 120 different companies via both in-house and open courses.

Prepare your diary for 2023 and invest in your own and colleagues personal R&D by booking onto one of our courses today on the One Nucleus website.

How do you Recruit a Good Leader?

Strong leadership teams within an organisation are essential for employee engagement, satisfaction and overall business performance. With the 'Anatomy of a Life Science Leader' panel discussion fast approaching at our annual Genesis conference on 7 December, we've been thinking about what you might need to take into consideration when hiring an effective leader. One Nucleus Collaboration with the Future of Work Institute

In May 2022, we announced our collaboration with the Future of Work Institute to enhance our Employer of Choice webinar series that provides our members with real world insights, guidance, and best practices on becoming an employer of choice to attract and develop their best team.

Fast forward five months and we have learnt how to; become a destination workplace; support our employees and colleagues through wellbeing strategies; overcome the challenges around hybrid working and finally; to become a great storyteller.

It has been a pleasure to work with expert facilitators, Barry Winkless, Chief Strategy Officer at Cpl Group & Head of the Future of Work Institute, and Elysia Hegarty, Associate Director and Future of Wellness Lead at Future of Work

Institute. We look forward to what this collaboration brings in 2023. Continue reading...
